and that Senator Nichol was concerned about and that was being consistent in terms of the savings and loans and the banks in relation to these small loan companies regarding the rule of seventy-eight and I assured Senator Nichol that we fully intended, there is two methods we had to go about this, one was to either include the banks and the savings and loans this year in the rule of seventy-eight. But because we felt that that would not be right without holding a public hearing, we intend to do that next year. So let the record clearly indicate that that is our intention and that was part of the arrangement that was discussed when we agreed to support the Senator Nichol bill. So with that provision and understanding in mind, I certainly support the bill.
